Youth Summit a Positive Step

The Saskatchewan Federation of Labour is pleased with the government's announcement to host a Youth Summit, a conference to consult with young people about their vision of Saskatchewan's future.

"We look forward to working with government, the education and training sector, and business to set up a dialogue with young people. The Youth Summit will provide us all with valuable information about the direction young people want to see Saskatchewan move in. We need their ideas and their leadership if we want to be an exciting, progressive province," said SFL President Larry Hubich.

"At the Summit in February, we will be paying close attention to the session on Youth-Friendly Workplaces. We need to hear about the kinds of things young workers want and need from potential employers. It's an issue of recruitment and retention of our youth," added Hubich.

The SFL represents over 93,500 unionized workers from 35 affiliated unions in Saskatchewan.
